

Advertising and Digital Marketing Communications (BA)

This program is offered by the School of Communications/ Communications and Journalism Department and is only available at the St. Louis main campus.

Program Description

The Advertising and Digital Marketing Communications degree prepares students to become strategic, creative, and data-driven professionals in today's digital-first communications environment. The program blends advertising fundamentals with modern digital marketing practices, emphasizing social media, online advertising, content creation, visual storytelling, and audience engagement across web-based and emerging platforms. Students develop practical skills in writing, creative design, digital strategy, media planning, analytics, and project management while creating campaigns that connect brands with consumers in measurable ways.

The program prepares students to work in corporate, nonprofit, and government organizations, focusing on building brands, engaging audiences, managing reputation, and driving results across digital channels. Graduates are ready to contribute in advertising agencies, digital marketing firms, social media agencies, corporate marketing departments, nonprofit organizations, and public institutions. This degree aligns with growing demand for professionals who can navigate fast-changing media environments and deliver results in today's communication-driven economy.
